

Xiao Hu, a Chinese composer, serves as a professor at the Electronic Music Department in Sichuan Conservatory of Music in China. He has composed many kinds of music composition. Some of them had won awards both in national and international composition competitions and also had been performed in Asian, Europe and United States. Professor Hu has devoted himself to the contemporary music composition, electronic music and research for a long time and has been frequently invited to attend various music festivals and academic exchanges both in domestic and overseas.